Sparkling Pharaoh Opens Mon.

Three members of the cast of Pharaoh were called away within 48 hours of the scheduled dress rehearsal, and although their roles were not long, it was felt unwise to attempt to replace them and hold the extra rehearsals necessary in such limited time; so the opening night of Pharaoh will be Monday, August 31, instead of the previously announced date. And instead of the two scheduled week-ends, the play will run for seven consecutive nights, closing with the performance of Sunday, September 6.

Dave Kirk, the director, has the production well in hand, and promises a smooth and beautiful performance. The settings, built by a crew of young enthusiasts working long hours, and painted by Ruth Allen and her assistants, will be a striking reproduction of an ancient Egyptian walled garden, village streets, and the great temple of Amen-Ra.

Roland Scheffler will handle the intricate lighting plot; Mausita Jennings will be in charge of the fine music, and Reed Putnam will assist Mr. Scheffler with the lights and Mrs. Jennings with the music.

Ora Fallis has outdone herself in designing and fabricating the superb costumes, and the thoroughly experienced Irene Marquis is in charge of the make-up.

The striking poster was drawn and silk-screened by Joyce Bishop. The swords have been specially made by the Forge in the Forest.

Robin Roberts is the assistant director, Jack James the stage manager, Chuck Stohr in technical control. Choreography is by the Ivanovsky School of Dancing. Nancy Wooliever, Nicola Harrison, and Lesley Robertson play the three women who appear in the

Thousand Here For Serra Pilgrimage At Mission Sunday

More than a thousand pilgrims from Catholic organizations over northern California will converge on Mission Carmel Sunday afternoon to pay homage to Fra Junipero Serra who lies buried at the foot of the high altar.

Knights of Columbus of the Fourth Degree in uniform and colorful regalia will head the pilgrimage of members of the Third Order of St. Francis and Serra clubs.

Bishop Harry Clinch will celebrate a solemn low Pontifical Mass in the quadrangle of the mission. Father Noel Moholy, F. M., vice postulator at Old Mission Santa Barbara for the Canonization of Fra Serra, will preach on the life and works of the famed founder of the California missions.

The Fourth Degree Knights will be under the command of Dr. Joaquin C. Lopes, master of the northern district of California. Serra General Assembly of the 4th Degree, of Oakland, California, will be given the honor of leading the uniformed knights into the Mission. The pilgrims, following, will recite the Rosary for Fra Serra's Canonization.

Businessman, Former Mayor, Heron Celebrates Golden Anniversary With His True Love, The Forest Theater

By RAYLYN PENNEY

Hired by Herbert Heron to transport some stage property last week, a local trucker said, "The Forest Theater? Where is it exactly?" "It takes something like that," Bert says, "to make me realize just how long a half century is, and how many changes it's brought."

The half century is, of course, the period between David and Pharaoh, or the stretch from July 9, 1910, when the Forest Theater played the biblical drama David to its first audience and this summer, the theater's golden anniversary season, with Mr. Heron's own play, Pharaoh, set to open Monday at 8:30 o'clock.

But so much reminiscing, both analytic and sentimental, has been going on about the old theater since spring as to make the 50 long years seem nothing.

"I had to tell the deliveryman how to get there," Bert said, "but I recall a time when every resident of Carmel would be at the theater on play nights, either on stage or in the audience."

"Bert Heron and the Forest Theater" has long been such a well established association of words that, for Carmelites at least, it approaches a linkage like Shakespeare and the Globe.

After Stanford, Bert Heron spent several years in stock and repertoire companies in Los Angeles, and in little theaters in Los Angeles and San Francisco. He appeared in Bohemian Grove many times, he says.

But after four years of acting, the poetry enthusiast decided to become a poet. He drifted to Carmel in 1908. The Forest Theater venture was a natural outgrowth of both his poetic and dramatic inclinations and those of his new friends here.

"I soon found out what an insecure livelihood a poet has, so I turned to prose. When I discovered the same thing again, I went into business."

Heron's book store was at first

Co. Fair Is Going Full Blast And Everybody's Glad

Thousands of visitors have been pouring through the gates at the Monterey County Fair since it opened Wednesday morning. They are enthusiastically receiving the continuous daily entertainment offered free on the Fair's main stage. Gates open at 10:00 o'clock each morning.

The 1959 International Fair got underway Wednesday morning with the traditional kickoff breakfast and the coronation of Fair Queen Kathy Prewett of King City.

Today is Kids' Day and all those under 16 years of age will be admitted free of charge. On the program to entertain the youngsters are the puppets of the Sylve and Pup KNTV Channel 11 show, a Fast Draw Contest to find the fastest gun alive, a free watermelon feed for all kiddies and a variety of carnival rides and strolling clowns.

For horse fanciers there are two horse show performances each day, a matinee show at 1:30 o'clock and an evening performance starting at 8:00 o'clock. More than 350 horses will compete in the nine performances for over $20,000 in purses and trophies.

A big event Saturday morning is the Jr. Livestock Auction at

Planners Decide Forest Theater Is Worth Looking For

At yesterday afternoon's planning commission meeting, Mrs. Florence Josselyn presented to other commissioners three suggested provisions for a new city sign ordinance. As member of the special sign ordinance committee with Commissioners Herbert Blanks and Fred Keeble, Mrs. Josselyn in her progress report said that she had surveyed existing signs in the business district and consulted with the city attorney.

Tom Perry went to Salinas Friday for a talk with the county road commissioner. As president of Carmel Unincorporated and special ambassador from Hatton Fields, his visit was official.

A while back, the county road crew "trimmed" up to 14 feet, Carmel Valley trees to get some road equipment through. Carmel Valley residents were upset.

Since Hatton Fields is scheduled for some road work, too, the property owners have become alarmed. They don't want the county road department "trimming" their trees.

The county road commissioner agreed with Mr. Perry that the road crew may have been over-enthusiastic in their trimming operations in the valley, but it wouldn't happen again, not on such an elaborate scale.

Anyway, seal-coating is all that's scheduled for Hatton Fields, because the road department is running (goodie) out of money.

Howard Timbers' prune-plum tree is producing a luscious harvest, a matter of pride to Mr. Timbers, and of interest to the neighboring coons. After the first raid on his prune-plums, Mr. Timbers smeared the trunk of tree with molasses impregnated with salt.

This worked until the molasses dried.

Mr. Timbers put a metal cuff around the trunk of the tree, very slippery, unclimbable for coons.

This worked until the coons achieved skill in jumping from the neighboring bank into the tree.

Mr. Timbers has now spread his sleeping bag on the ground and when night falls, he climbs into it.

This works.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Timbers, who has been vacationing in the north, has returned with the report that the Seattle school system has eliminated, wiped out entirely, its kindergartens.

Now don't get excited and start counting how many thousands of dollars the Carmel Unified School District would save if it put its five kindergarten teachers to teaching elementary classes and could cut five classrooms out of its building program.

Seattle is in the State of Washington, which must have a different code book from California's. A school district may eliminate kindergarten in California, until one parent, just one, petitions the board of education to reinstate it. The reinstatement is mandatory.

There's to be a part-time county psychiatrist, and the total budget

As a result of this study she suggested that in the new sign ordinance; first, the size of signs should be determined by the size of the building on which they were placed; secondly, sign size should be scaled down according to the number of occupancies in a building; thirdly, sign materials should be non-reflective.

She also reported that she had seen violations of the existing sign ordinance on her business district tour, such as five signs on one small building. The existing sign ordinance says there may be only one sign to a building, limited to 16 square feet in size. "Should we keep the 16 square feet size?" Mrs. Josselyn asked the commission. "Should all designs for signs be submitted for approval?" she also queried.

Studying sign decorations, she said that she and the city attorney had concluded that if sign decoration enhanced a building it should not be included in the overall sign size.

City Attorney John Morse suggested further sign study be undertaken using photographs taken by Building Inspector Floyd Adams. Commissioner Keeble asked for another meeting of the special committee before general discussion of the new sign ordinance at the next commission study session.

Mrs. Josselyn reminded commissioners that new sign problems may arise when proposed Fenton block buildings are ready for occupancy.

Floodlighting of business district buildings, particularly motels, was another matter on which Mrs. Josselyn reported. She said that the special committee would ascertain from the P. C. & E. what candlepower was needed for safety. "Bright lights are not liked in Carmel," she added, "but the problem is more intangible than it appears."

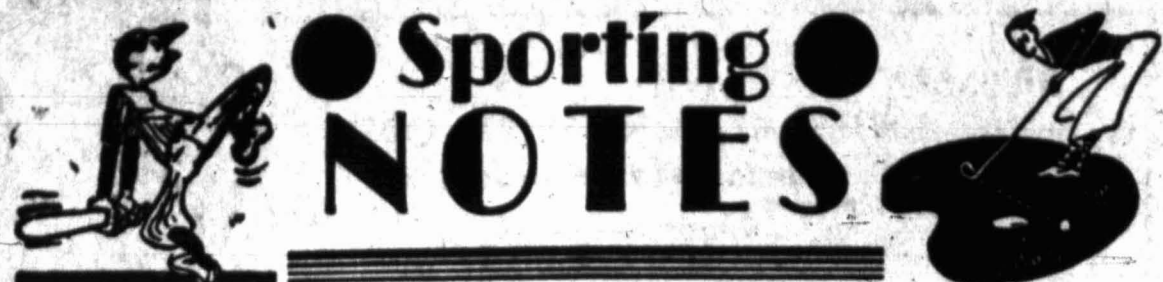

Mr. Morse remarked that a ratio of candlepower to street linear frontage might restrict the amount of candlepower in floodlighting.

Chairman George Willox emphasized the necessity to "get on" with this matter.

Planning commissioners decided to initiate no procedure to obtain an information-directional sign for the Forest Theater at the intersection of Ocean Avenue with Junipero and Mountain View Streets requested by the Arts Commission.

"What's worth finding is worth looking for," said Commissioner Hugh Smith in his report on this request. "Carmel is a place where you have to look for things, this is the character of the community," he added. He felt that the Forest Theater sign would destroy the historic attitude of the city's policy

CARMEL HIGH OPENS FOOTBALL PRACTICE SEPTEMBER 1

With medical exams and equipment checkout slated for today and tomorrow, Carmel High's anticipated 100-man football squad will hit the turf for the first time on September 1 at 1:00 o'clock for a two-hour workout under the direction of coaches Fred Rainer and George Mosolf. One o'clock to three o'clock sessions will be followed daily until school starts on September 10. Padre gridders will engage in a total of 20 games during the upcoming season with the varsity slated for seven plus the Jamboree and the Red and Gray game, the junior-varsity plays eight, and the lightweights five. George Mosolf and Don Craig will guide the varsity squad, Fred Rainer and Dick Lawitzke will handle the reins for the junior-varsity, and Hadley Hicks, former Arizona State griddy, will mentor the lightweights.

Working on lengthy win streaks, both the varsity and junior-varsity squads face severe challenges this season in their efforts to keep the undefeated records alive. Graduation has depleted the varsity of all but eight lettermen and most of last year's junior varsity squad has been elevated to this year's varsity. Returning varsity lettermen are backs Ron Faia, Darrell Clark, Bob Moore, and Russ Wise; and linemen Tom Green, Harrison Hilbert, Chris Wilkin, and John Wilkin. Up from the junior-varsity

First game action at the Padre campus is slated for Tuesday, September 15 when the annual Red and Gray intrasquadder is slated to unfold at 3:00 o'clock. The intrasquad tilt is played under game conditions with league officials and is designed to shake down the squad for the CCAL Jamboree which is slated for Friday, September 18. League action gets underway on October 3 when Gilroy, the team favored to win the 1959 title, invades Bardarson Field.

JIM LEE WINS MCKENZIE TABLE TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Proving there is a carryover from tennis to ping-pong, Jim Lee, former Carmel High tennis star, stroked his way to the Carmel Youth Center table tennis championship and took home the Keith McKenzie trophy to add to his award collection. A record turnout of 18 paddle-wielders made a run for this year's McKenzie tournament and winner Lee had to be at his best to finish in front of the field.

In Tuesday night's final action, Lee was pushed to the limit before outstroking Fritz Scheffer in the match for the tournament title. Scheffer won the first game 21-19 and appeared to have the steadier game, but the cool and poised Lee came back to take the second game, 21 to 17, and turned on the heat in the decider to win it, 21 to 15.

Bill Leavitt salvaged the consolation trophy by taking the measure of Andy Elliott, 21-12 and 21-19. Vita Chakrabandhu, another Carmel High tennis star, copped third place and Junior Jackson finished in the fourth spot.

LOBO GRIDDERS FACE NINE-GAME SCHEDULE

Coach George Porter's 1959 football squad faces one of the toughest schedules in the history of Monterey Peninsula College football this season as it takes on six league opponents and three tough outsiders in a nine-game schedule. The Lobos open with the College of Sequoias in a home game on September 19 and close the season with arch-rival Hartnell on Saturday, November 21. This is the first year the Hartnell game hasn't been played as a Thanksgiving Day special. Although the Marin

CARMEL CRICKET TEAM CLIPS SAN MATEO

The form chart listed the Carmel cricket players as superior mudders and they proved to be just that as they powered past the visiting San Mateo Cricket Club, 140 to 108, at the slippery Carmel High field last Sunday afternoon. The heavy going hampered the fielding of both clubs but it didn't bother the big bats of Alf Cooper and Ken Allen who combined to score over 100 runs for the local cricketers. Cooper nailed the invading bowlers for 55 runs while his close-running teammate, Allen, swung the flat bat for 51 markers. Off their sterling performance in Sunday's match and by their consistent play during the past season, Cooper and Allen have been selected for the Northern California All-Stars and will see action in the forthcoming exhibition games in the San Francisco Bay area.

The supervisors, on Monday, adopted the $14,613,933 county budget and fixed the tax rate at $1.78 per $100 assessed valuation, holding the increase to eight cents, as they had planned.

When the supervisors cut the $24,000 item from the budget which would provide a county psychiatrist, Monterey Peninsula residents protested fiercely at the budget hearing in Monterey. They maintained that a psychiatrist was a necessary adjunct to the psychiatric ward at the county hospital, even at the cost of increase in tax rate.

King City residents, at their budget hearing, wanted the tax rate kept down at any cost.

Monday, the supervisors managed to please both ends of the county. The part-time psychiatrist will receive $3,500 from the county hospital's professional service fund, already in the budget, and $3,500 from the state.

We can thank Thomson Hudson for persuading his fellow supervisors to hold the circuit budget meetings, for the first time in the county's history. But next time, let's have copies of the tentative budget available on the peninsula earlier. Three days before budget hearing is not time enough. Peninsula conservationists did not like the continuing provision for mountain lion bounty but had not time to get together to appoint a representative to speak for them at the budget session.

A soured-on-freeways peninsula should also have had time to look into the county road improvement program provided for in the budget, not as a matter of money saving but of scenery saving.

The supervisors' refusal to allow $3,500 for the retarded children's training program needed study. Couldn't this have been found by cutting $3,500 out of the $15,000 donated to Monterey County Industrial Development, Inc.? King City objects to the entire $15,000 gift that does them no good, and Carmel objects to the entire program which has great potential for harm.

Ocean Avenue Agricultural Report: The pea crop is doing abominably in the sidewalk tree holes in front of Putnam and Raggett's. The tomatoes in front of Kips are flourishing as to foliage but as yet, no promise of fruit.

Monday's meeting of city council and arts commission produced the following motion made by Councilman Gunnar Norberg, seconded by Councilman James Buffington. "It is the sense of the city council that an arts festival on a high cultural level is generally approved and that the council may consider financial assistance to the project on a basis of demonstrated need; and further that the arts commission shall proceed to appoint a co-ordinating committee to make preliminary proposals to the city council via the arts commission."

Nobody questions that a Carmel Arts Festival would be on a "high cultural level." The interesting element is in the second part of the motion, about appointing a co-ordinating committee to make preliminary proposals. Perhaps the co-

Monterey is leaving no stone, fallen branch or buffalo chip unturned to block Carmel Unified School District's annexation to the Hartnell Junior College District.

Recently they raised the question of the legality of such a move. The "old" state school code had a provision for unified school districts' annexation to junior college districts, but there is no such provision in the "new" code.

Carmel School District Superintendent Stuart Mitchell found out why, this week, on a visit to the legislative council's office in Sacramento.

The school code has recently undergone a reclassification, like the Carmel City Ordinance Code, compression and rewriting, but everything in the "old" code that had not been repealed or amended goes into the "new" code.

Everything didn't. The section providing for districts such as ours annexing to junior colleges such as Hartnell, got lost somewhere in the reclassification.

Attorney General has already ruled in another case that the provision is in effect even if it failed to get printed in the "new" code. There's no problem there.

At their meeting last week, members of the Carmel school district board acted on a letter from Frederick Huber, president of Monterey Junior College. Referring to Carmel's and Pacific Grove's renewed interest in annexation to Hartnell Junior College, Huber's letter said: "It would seem that this fine program of higher education (at Monterey Junior College) is being jeopardized, and he asked for an opportunity to appear before the board, and present the educational program of Monterey College.

The Carmel board sent best wishes to Mr. Huber but suggested he wait until after the joint meeting of the three peninsula school boards on September 28. "If any matter or issue concerning educational matters arises, the board would like to avail itself of the opportunity of meeting you at a mutually accepted time."

The Carmel, Pacific Grove, Monterey school district boards' meeting of September 28 is to be held to satisfy Hartnell that everything possible has been done to bring all three districts under the Hartnell wing and have, in effect, a county junior college. Everything has been done, with Monterey a determined holdout, so that Carmel and Pacific Grove are forced to seek annexation to Hartnell individually. It involves a reduction from 52 to 35 cents in the junior college tax rate for the two districts, and for Monterey, too, if they would come along. —W. C.

Heron Celebrates 50th Anniversary Of The Forest Theater

—it was started in 1918—a regular retail outlet, but has now grown into a specialized business supplying rare books and first editions and selling to a large mail-order clientele.

Located in Heron's Seven Arts Court at Lincoln and Ocean, the store is due for another change soon. He is adding a Carmel Room, where only books by Carmel authors and books about Carmel will be sold.

"But it's surprising what a large territory this covers by now," Mr. Heron said. Planning for the new room, he prepared, mostly from his own memory, a list of writers who have lived here, if only for a short time, and whose books include at least some mention of the area.

He discovered over a thousand. But he makes it plain that these authors cannot all be properly labeled former residents of Carmel, because of the brevity of some of their stays here. To cover what he considers true resident authors he has a shorter list, with some 200 names. But both lists are limited to bona fide published writers.

Bert Heron was mayor of Carmel twice (1930-32 and 1938-40). Pine Cone editions of the times show that the first time around he was elected by the highest vote any office seeker ever received in Carmel, and that in the second election he exceeded his own record.

Altogether he was on the City Council eight years and served two terms on the Carmel Planning Commission.

But numerous as his other pursuits have been, Bert Heron makes it plain at every turn of a conversation with him that the theater in which he has been variously actor, director and playwright since 1910 is still his primary love. "We've seen a lot of growth in theater support in Carmel these 50 years. When I first came, the only theater seemed to be an occasional performance of Mrs. Jarley's Wax Works or Evenings With Dickens—strictly private theatricals."

About Pharaoh, he said, "I've spent a long time on it, and I think it's my best. But what I think means very little. Milton thought Paradise Regained was better than Paradise Lost."

Actually, however, Herbert Heron is a man of multiple interests, in any one of which he is comfortably at home.

Few westerners are more California-oriented than Heron, yet he was born in Eagleswood, New Jersey, a village since absorbed by Perth Amboy.

With his mother and grandmother, he and two brothers came west to settle in Los Angeles; then they moved to a ranch in Ventura County, where the Heron youngsters attended one of this state's early little red school houses.

"I managed to escape after the fifth grade," he recalls, "but it didn't last. My grandmother caught up with my brother and me and sent us to a military academy for a year."

After the year, Bert carried on his educational responsibilities alone, working at odd jobs, but saving time for baseball, football, tennis and track, and going from the academy to Stanford University for a time.

An early love for books stayed with him, especially for poetry, particularly Shakespeare. "I read plenty of Milton, Tennyson, Browning, Swinburne, Matthew Arnold, Kipling. When you're steeped in the old, you don't thrill to the new."

He meant, he said, that his failure to be enthusiastic about many of the modern poets is perhaps more his failing than theirs. He was quick to make an exception of Robinson Jeffers whose greatness, Bert feels, stems from his deft handling of language. "He produces horror that surpasses Euripides, yet he can also achieve immense beauty."

Music On The Peninsula

BY MARY LINDSAY-OLIVER

A concert by the San Francisco Chamber Players took place at Nepenthe on Wednesday. This group will not play at Nepenthe Saturday, as previously announced.

The 13 players, the fullest orchestra group yet to be presented at the down-coast restaurant, performed nobly Bach's No. 1 Brandenburg Concerto at both the 4:00 and 8:00 o'clock recitals. In a guest appearance with the group, violin virtuoso Nathan Rubin, led and played the first violin in Bach's concerto in E major, and with flutist Raymond Fabrizio and violist Mary James, the Beethoven Trio for flute, violin and viola. Margaret Fabrizio, with ingenuity and good musicianship, performed a sonata by C. P. E. Bach on the harpsichord. Raymond Duste, first oboist, with Jean Stevens and Carolin Michaelhan, who were added oboists for the Brandenburg, Joseph Axup and Bill van Sandt, horns, bassoonist Leland Smith, violists Donna Sarlari and Rugiero Pelosi and Helen Stross, cellist, all contributed their distinguished musicianship to a concert of the highest value in chamber music. It was thoroughly enjoyed by the full house, evidence of the growing interest today in Bach's happy expressions. Music of flowing movement is irresistible. October will find the next concert at Nepenthe, date to be announced later.

A worthwhile recital on August 31 will be given by cellist Gabor Rejto and pianist Adolph Baller at the Allen-Smith Hall, 556 Abego Street, Monterey, sponsored by the public relations department of Allen-Smith Importers and is open to the public. Mrs. Klene brought these famous musicians to Carmel some time ago. Baller has played two "command" performances at Court in England, and Rejto, graduate of the Budapest Royal Academy, was a prodigy student of Casals. Carmelites who heard them at the All Saints' Hall will certainly want to hear them again.

Director Kurt Adler announces he has secured Giuseppe Zampieri and Giuseppe Gismonde, two of Italy's most acclaimed tenors for the San Francisco opera. Zampieri comes from the Vienna Staatsoper and La Scala where he is a leading tenor. His American debut will be L'Amore dei Tre Re September 17. Gismonde, from Naples' San Carlo, made his American debut at the Metropolitan last season in Turando, and appears first September 12 in Madame Butterfly.

White Oaks Gives Lively Performance Of Gentlemen Prefer

By Bob Kaller

Anita Loos' and Joe Fields' traditional musical Gentlemen Prefer Blondes was chosen this past week end by the White Oaks Summer Theatre Company in the Valley for their concluding offering of the season.

A crackling, sophisticated musical of over a decade ago, the play was given a pleasant, tuneful production by the hard-hitting young company. If comparison with the two previous stunning presentations of Seven Year Itch and Lute Song paled this one somewhat in comparison, it was merely a case of a smash success always being hard to follow.

One of the problems of a repertoire company is an inevitable attempt to revolve roles, a move which does not always result in the highest use of talent, nor in ideal casting. However, a talented group of actors all, the current cast achieved a more than competent portrayal in a group of demanding roles.

Story of the book, of course, spins about the adventures of an ingratiating gold-digger, one Lorelei Lee by name, and her true-blue pal, Dorothy Shaw, the one in search of a retirement annuity in the form of diamonds and the other in the form of a loving husband.

Mary Sue Tatum as the hip-swinging Lorelei displayed a fully-packed figure to good advantage as well as a forceful stage presence in Little Girl From Little Rock and Diamonds Are A Girl's Best Friend, while Tom Mitchell was properly relaxed as Henry Spofford, Dorothy's wealthy socialite suitor.

Outstanding character parts were those by Harry Grille and Dan Sullivan in a highly successful burlesque of a father and son firm of legal counsel. Mark Samuels as the wife-fearing but girl-prone Sir Francis Beekman, Shirley Eoff as the chubby, champagne-loving mother of Henry, and Cliff Rivers doubling as a steward and an aged button tycoon, all strove valiantly in maintaining a pace of gaiety and laughter.

Harriet Fogerson was properly villainous as the scheming Lady Phyllis Beekman and Shirley Wilson flounced determinedly through the "true-blue" part of Dorothy Shaw. Dick Bird as a semi-moronic carrot-eater had a bit of difficulty in catching his part, but ran it a good race.

Frank McNaughton was his usual polished self, and did much to lift the level and pace of the entire production from the beginning. Conscious of the value of body movement, McNaughton was far more relaxed than a number of his colleagues and added warmth to his scenes as a result.

Judy Miller as Gloria Stark, an ambitious young danseuse, was both graceful and appealing. Bruce Bingham, Alan Bertram and Dan Sullivan were athletic and vital in chorus boy roles while Neva Aki, Angene Feves, and Julie Stewart were both appealing and pretty in chorus girl supporting scenes.

Settings, design, and lighting by Wayne Cain were thoroughly professional and striking, while the costumes and choreography by Gale Peterson were imaginative and well adapted to their roles. Production and direction were by Sally Church.

From a technical and professional point of view the masterly hand of Raoul Peizer, who directed the previous two productions of the White Oaks Theatre, were missed, but from the audience point of view of seeing an entertaining, brisk musical Gentlemen Prefer Blondes certainly filled the bill.

Gentlemen Prefer Blondes will be playing Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights for the next two week ends, and should afford a wonderful way to wind up a summer vacation on an up-beat note.

Blake Lyle

George Blake Lyle, 27, was fatally injured on Friday night on the Los Gatos-Santa Cruz highway. Driving south, he apparently tried to pass a car, hit the rear of a lumber truck and was thrown from his car which careened across the highway and overturned after hitting a bank.

Born in San Mateo on September 26, 1931, he graduated from Carmel High School in 1949 then attended California State Polytechnic Institute in San Luis Obispo before serving in the Navy. For three years he was employed in the city engineer's office in Salinas and, at the time of his death, was a civil engineer for a Sunnyvale firm.

Survivors are his mother, Mrs. Louise Queen Lyle of Carmel; three sisters, Mrs. Donald Hiatt of Los Gatos, Mrs. Jon Older of Hillsborough and Mrs. Lee Blodgett of Fairfax; two aunts, Mrs. Margaret Queen Williams of Carmel and Sister Ann Maria of the Dominican Order in Oakland; and an uncle, William S. Lyle of San Francisco.

Rosary was recited in the Dorney and Farlinger Memorial Chapel on Sunday evening. Requiem Mass was celebrated on Monday morning in Carmel Mission. Entombment was in Holy Cross Mausoleum, Colma.

Wilderness Of The West

A Monthly Column
by C. Edward Graves

U.S. CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AND THE WILDERNESS BILL

On the Monterey Peninsula there are many members of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. This is a valuable and respected organization and is accomplishing much good in the country. Many of my best friends belong to it and I myself formerly belonged to similar organizations and actively worked in them.

It is therefore all the more regrettable that in one particular field the U.S. Chamber has adopted a policy based on misapprehension and misinformation. I am referring to the stand taken by its Department of Natural Resources on the Wilderness Bill (S. 1123) over the last few years.

I have written several columns on this bill, since it was first introduced in Congress in 1956 and shall not take the space to repeat what I have already said. Suffice it to say now that it is considered to be the most important conservation bill before the country, endorsed by every nation-wide conservation organization.

In this column I wish to call attention to the campaign of misrepresentation against it, spearheaded by the Natural Resources Department of the U.S. Chamber, as an excellent illustration of this attitude. I shall quote a few excerpts from the July issue of The Nation's Business, official magazine of the U.S. Chamber. On August 4 I wrote to the manager of this department, offering him an opportunity to defend these statements, but he has not replied.

Under the heading, "Natural Resources," the statement is made: "Local raw materials needs, business expansion, payrolls and tax bases would be affected by the rapidly growing movement to withdraw millions of acres from full resource development and restrict their use to recreation." This is an obvious reference to the Wilderness Bill. This bill does not withdraw any land from resource development. It does not change the status of lands at present in the Wilderness Areas of the national forests or in the national parks. It simply gives added protection in a number of ways to such areas already set aside. Furthermore in no case have any public lands been restricted to recreation. The primary value of all public lands in the West is for the conservation of water. Recreational uses in no way interfere with water conservation.

Another statement in Nation's Business reads: "Proposals, ranging from discussion to actual legislation, include 50 million acres of public land for totally restricted wilderness areas." At present there are 14 million acres in officially designated Wilderness Areas of the country, and 23 million in the national park system, a total of 37 million. The statement that 50 million additional acres are contemplated, more than doubling the present acreage, is a misrepresentation of facts. Furthermore, none of the Wilderness Areas are "totally restricted." Logging is the only "resource development" not permitted.

It is unfortunate that the U.S. Chamber feels obliged to resort to such tactics. Conservationists blame the influence of certain restricted but highly organized users of commodity resources in parts of the national forests of the West for this policy. The Junior Chamber of Commerce of the U.S. has recently come out in favor of the Wilderness Bill. It is hoped that the senior Chamber may soon adopt a different and more reasonable attitude.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

Ruth Galvin Thornburg, Librarian

It is probable that no one enjoys receiving an overdue notice from a library. It is certain that no librarian likes to send them. It is a routine job which is dull, time consuming, and expensive to the library for this reason. The persons in the circulation department are writing notices, checking shelves, looking up addresses of delinquent borrowers, when they could be doing constructive work which they enjoy. Certain phases of library work attract people into the profession but none of these include the prospect of sending overdue notices. However, library books are public property and the recovery of this property is an integral part of the librarian's job. It can be expensive or not expensive to the city according to how much of it there is to be done. Remember this when you are tempted to keep a book overdue thinking that you might as well because "surely the fine pays for it." The fine does not pay for it. The fine is generally so small that it pays for only a fraction of the time involved, and besides this there are costs of postage, printed forms, and envelopes.

Libraries frequently figure time lost on overdue when they plan the number of copies to buy of any popular book. While one person is keeping a new book overdue, many others may be going slightly mad and waiting for their turn to read it. We are always looking for ways to improve and make more efficient our methods for sending overdue notices, but there are certain things which must be done and no amount of planning can eliminate them. So bring your books back when they are due. If you must keep them longer, and they are renewable, telephone us so that we can take care of them. Do something, don't just let the whole thing slide along.

As we get closer to the fall, the book prospect seems to be looking up and we have a number of good ones on order for you. Meanwhile, here are a few we think are interesting and we have time for only very brief mention of them due to our long explanation of other matters.

Floyd Schmoer spent a year on Mount Rainier and called his book of experiences there A Year in Paradise.

Dr. Leopold Stein is a psychiatrist who says there are modern witches, and wrote a book about four of them. The title of the book is Loathsome Women.

James Cameron, who wrote Mandarin Red, says that the year 1914 marked the end of the old and the beginning of the new world. His book, entitled 1914, tells why he thinks this is true.

There is a dietetic approach to the problem of alcoholism and it is expounded in Roger Williams' book Alcoholism. If this theory is true the state should distribute copies of this book free of charge and mailed in plain wrappers to anyone asking for it.

A revised edition of the book George III and the Historians has recently come out. The author is Herbert Butterfield and he tries to clarify this important period of English history.

The diaries of Roger Casement were forbidden publication for many years but at last they are out and make absorbing reading. The title of the book is The Black Diaries of Roger Casement.

There are six new novels, and many other non-fiction things which we have no more space to mention. Come in and see the lists on the bulletin board.

BIRTH OF A CHINESE SAGE

(Old Chinese Proverb: The unicorn walks abroad only when a sage is born)

The fabled unicorn walks abroad this night
Knowing well that he portends a birth;
Knowing too how scholars longed for sight
Of hoofs, all silver, barely touching earth,
And slender jeweled horn. Young men, grown old
In waiting, sigh and sleeve their hands, content;
Some mother cradles one who will unfold
Another leaf from truth with Heaven's consent.
From willows, black in moonlight, forms emerge;
Dappled ponies, not contained in myth,
Following silver hoofs that step to an urge
Of wings: earth-bound by man's desire as withe.
The unicorn walks abroad, when a sage is born,
And writes a name in fire with a jeweled horn.

UNITY

Look, world! My love is like unto the noble, sky-flung pine tree . . .

And I, mere lowly, fragile fern close-guarded at his feet;
In splendid valor, lithe and free he tow'rs high,
high above me,
But, spawned within the earth's sweet womb, our roots
reach down and meet.

A bold night breeze all-rampant 'mongst his tender topmost branches

For me strums magic nocturnes wafted from fair, distant lands;
And needle-fashioned greenlings show'r in aching avalanches,
Brand sharp, exquisite woundings on my outstretched, upcurled hands.

Close! Close!—through days born mute or spewing blatant charivari . . .

What ho! Come, sun! Come, rain! Come, flame! Come, years austere, wild, fleet!

Pale satellite, I, and he the god for whom the fates did spare me,
Warm-couched within their shelter staunch, our roots
reach down and meet.

CLOUDS

Observe the green river of the sky
And the snow statuary.
Praxiteles standing in the quarry of light
Carving and chiselling from blue marble—
The wind changing and changing . . .
Aphrodite at the edge of a precipice,
A hawk circling rock wind—
History of days on a parchment of silence.
Take the blue gift in your hands
And walk with a golden urn to the edge of green.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

Christ Jesus' triumph over material laws of limitation established the supremacy of God's unchangeable law.

This is a theme to be set forth at Christian Science services Sunday in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Christ Jesus." Included in the Bible references to be read is the account in John (6) of Jesus' feeding of five thousand men with five loaves and two fishes.

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy the following will be read (273:21-26): "God never ordained a material law to annul the spiritual law. If there were such a material law, it would oppose the supremacy of Spirit, God, and impugn the wisdom of the creator. Jesus walked on the waves, fed the multitude, healed the sick, and raised the dead in direct opposition to material laws."

The Golden Text is from John (3:16): "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

Superintendent of Schools Stuart Mitchell and Mrs. Mitchell arrived home on Friday from a two-weeks vacation during which they hiked over the trail from Tuolumne Meadows to Yosemite Valley. In the Valley they saw their daughter, Barbara, and son-in-law Dick Small, who are working there for the summer, then drove to the Tetons in Wyoming.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell report that Dick will teach next year in Brentwood and commute week-ends to Stockton where Barbara will be practicing teaching.

Mrs. Daisy Taylor Returns

Two more weeks remain of Mrs. Daisy Taylor's three-weeks Carmel visit. She is staying at the home of Mrs. Emma Scott at Dolores and Eighth Streets. In 1954 Mrs. Taylor left Carmel after 30 years' residence here. She is now living in the PEO home in Alhambra.

Visits, luncheons and dinners with Carmel friends are occupying Mrs. Taylor's time. On Monday evening she attended a meeting of the original Peninsula PEO chapter at the home of Miss Ruth Blanchard in Carmel. Mrs. Taylor was a member of this group when it organized in Pacific Grove and is interested to find that there are now two PEO chapters in Carmel. The PEO is a philanthropic and educational sorority.

Leon Wilson Here With Family

Mr. Wilson is an associate of the McGraw-Hill publishing house in New York. He is also the author of several published novels and children's books.

Before coming to Carmel, the Wilsons visited Mr. Wilson's sister, Mrs. Noel Harris, in Eureka.

Phyllis Burnette Married

White blossom sprays on the end of every second pew created a flowery aisle leading to the candle-lit altar of All Saints' Episcopal Church, framed by two white flower bouquets, when Phyllis Ann Burnette was married to Denman Powell Gambill Jr. on Saturday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock by the Reverend David Hill. Robert Forbes, church organist, played the wedding music and late afternoon sunshine shone through the jewel-toned stained glass window above the altar party.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, G. H. Burnette. Her gown of deep ivory silk faille was made in princess style. A yoke of antique lace edged the pointed neckline of the bodice, both front and back, and extended in similar points on the shoulders above the elbow length sleeves. A row of tiny buttons down the back of the dress ended below the waistline in white roses, made from the same material as the gown. Beneath these the full skirt fell into a short train. Her fingertip ivory tulle veil was held in place by a lace Juliet cap and she carried a bouquet of orchids and stephanotis.

Attendants were Mrs. Theodore Lamarr Beck (Julie Work) as matron of honor and Mrs. Robert Ehrhart (Pat Finley), Mrs. Thomas Foster Smith of Pasadena, Lucy Peck of Northfield, Illinois, and Patricia Binger of Riverside. They were dressed alike in princess-style full-skirted dresses of Wedgewood blue silk organza and matching shoes. The red roses on their blue headbands matched those in their bouquets.

John Haak of San Marino was best man for the groom. Ushers were the groom's twin brothers, Delbert and Robert Gambill, James Miller and Thomas Smith.

Mrs. Burnette attended her daughter's marriage in a soft blue peau de soie gown with a modified bell skirt, a small blue bow hat and a corsage of off-white orchids.

The groom's mother, Mrs. Denman Powell Gambill Sr. of San Marino, wore an olive green peau de soie gown, matching hat and green orchid corsage.

The reception following the ceremony was held at the Beach Club. The bridal party stood before a screen of greenery to receive the guests. Small flower-decked trees of greenery in pots and arrangements of mixed flowers were used to decorate the rooms and the four-tiered wedding cake was topped by two lovebirds. The bride and groom toasted each other from a double silver wedding cup belonging to the groom's family and cut their cake with a knife which is an heirloom in the family of the bride's father.

When they left for a honeymoon in Mexico the bride had changed to a brown tweed suit, small brown cloche hat and brown alligator shoes and bag. On their return they will live in Berkeley for a year while the groom completes a postgraduate business education course.

The bride attended Sunset School and Santa Catalina School for Girls before entering Scripps College from which she graduated in June.

Her husband studied at preparatory schools in Pasadena and the East, then Stanford University for two years before transferring to Claremont Men's College. He graduated in 1958 and served in the Army for six months before continuing his education at the University of California.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were Colonel and Mrs. Thomas W. Ligon of Gibson Island, Maryland, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gambill of Oak Park, Illinois, and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Gambill of River Forest, Illinois. Unable to attend the marriage was the groom's grandfather, Delbert A. Clithero of Oak Park, Illinois.

Bartons Vacationing Here

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Barton of Sausalito (Erica Franke) and their small daughter, Jessica, are visiting Miss Flavia Flavin. Bob is vacationing between semesters at San Francisco State College where he is working in the humanities for a teaching credential.

Malcolm Graham Wed Saturday

Married in Grace Cathedral in San Francisco on Saturday evening at 8:00 o'clock were Natalie Mary Borchardt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rahr Borchardt of Butte, Montana, and Malcolm Scott Graham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Graham of Carmel. The Reverend John Gardner Hay performed the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white silk organza dress. The portrait neckline and short sleeves of the basque bodice were edged with Alencon lace. A scroll of the same lace trimmed the bodice and the flat front of the floor-length skirt. Unpressed pleats created skirt fullness at the sides and back which extended into a chapel train. A matching lace and organza headband held her tulle illusion veil in place and she carried a prayer book with an arrangement of orchids and bouvardia from which fell ribbon streamers ending in bows centered with bouvardia blossoms.

Mrs. George Selfridge Smith was matron of honor and the junior bridesmaid was the bride's cousin, Betty Gayle Youlden. Their white silk organza princess dresses had bateau necklines, short sleeves, bow back trim and a band of ruching bordering the hemline. They wore Dior bow headbands and carried medium blue delphiniums.

Ringbearer was the groom's brother, Gilbert Douglas Graham.

Best man was the groom's father, Frank Graham, and ushers were Robert James Boesch and the bride's brother, Edward Rahr Borchardt Jr.

At the wedding reception in the Hunt Room at the Fairmont Hotel, the bride's mother, Mrs. Edward Rahr Borchardt, received the guests wearing a pale blue silk sheath dress with chiffon drape. The groom's mother, Mrs. Frank Graham, wore a mauve silk faille dress and matching accessories.

The bride attended Westlake School for Girls in Los Angeles. The groom is a graduate of Brunswick School, Greenwich, Connecticut, and the University of Connecticut where he was affiliated with Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

After a honeymoon in Canada the young couple will live in San Carlos.

Planners Decide Forest Theater Worth Looking For

of allowing no directional-informational signs.

Commissioner Herbert Blanks remarked that such signs might be allowed if necessary for the general welfare of the citizens, such as finding the city hall to pay traffic fines. Service to the public should be the criterion in judging. These signs should benefit residents not tourists. "We pay the bill," he said.

"Do you think the citizens have such lapses of memory they can't remember where these are?" countered Mr. Willox referring to identification of public buildings.

Commissioner Keeble thought informational-directional signs were absolutely unnecessary and he was opposed to any. Such existing signs should be eliminated completely. "Directional signs are for tourists," he said.

Commissioner Jessie McGregor thought the Forest Theater was a very special part of Carmel, a monument, and was in favor of granting the sign, especially on a seasonal basis.

"The Forest Theater is special," said Commissioner Lee Gottfried. "But it is, was and always will be easy for anyone to find if they want to."

Mrs. Josselyn did not think a sign should be permitted for city-owned property when signs are not allowed for worthwhile projects of citizens on other property.

Commissioner Smith suggested no action. Other commissioners concurred.

Regular business of the commission yesterday afternoon included:

returning the DeCamp report on control of size of business district buildings to the city council for study. Building permits were granted to the Youth Center for an auditorium addition; to Robert L. Nusbaum for an addition of one apartment to an existing apartment building at San Carlos and Third Streets. William J. Brady and George Tomlinson may construct an interior partition in a building on the north side of Fifth Street; Robert Little and Dr. Dexter Whitcomb were allowed to add a balcony to Carmel Lodge.

Sitting as a board of adjustments, the commission allowed Dr. C. Arthur Spaulding to divide four lots at Fourth and Carmelo into two irregular building sites; granted permission to James C. Phillips to divide two lots at Casanova and Eleventh into two irregular sites if a driveway easement and off-street parking space are provided.

Commissioner Blanks reported that a meeting between commissioners and Edward DeMars of the county planning department has been arranged to discuss location and type of commercial zoning at the mouth of the Valley. Valley planners will also be present. Admiral C. W. Fisher, chairman of the Citizens Committee, told commissioners his group favored "one and one only" commercial development in this area.

Admiral Fisher also discussed and presented to the planning commission for study the letter which the Citizens Committee will present to the city council on August 31. It contains comments on the new proposed central district zoning.

Sparkling Pharaoh Opens Monday

Prologue. The men are John Harrison, Fred Farley, Jared Mays, Dave Kirk, and Herbert Heron, with Jerry Zellhoefer as the small boy completing the modern Prologue.

The scene of the play proper is in ancient Egypt, four thousand years ago. Nancy Wooliever becomes the Princess Korda, Gracecarol Bostwick is "The Queen of Zoan, Kenneth Barrette is Pilek, commander of the palace guard, Ronald Bostwick is Rahotep, general of the archers, and Herbert Heron plays Pharaoh. Russell Eddy, Glenn Berwick, Reed Putnam, Dave Rerk, Duncan and Gregory Stitt, Jerry Zellhoefer, Gordon Von Richter, David Armanasco, Bill Jackson, Francis Johnson, Kathy and Susan Keelan, and Kathy Testa are in various parts of the play.

Tickets are good for any one of the seven nights that Pharaoh will play—Monday through Sunday, opening August 31 and closing with the performance of September 6.

The weather promises to be warm and beautiful; but remember this is an outdoor theater by the seacoast of central California, and you should dress accordingly. Suitable clothing and a light robe will keep you comfortable throughout.

The Forest Theater is as warm a spot as can be found outdoors at night in Carmel-by-the-Sea, and the fires in the big stone fireplaces add to the comfort and the enjoyment of the play.
